To whom this may concern,

I spent 2 years in the computer industry in the US. I have had no problems with Microsoft except they beat their competition. Is this the US or not? Does free enterprise exist or is the concept for fairly tales and uncensored history books? I do not understand a 'free society' the penalizes a company that delivers services to a majority of the market, out distances their competitors then is criticized for being successful.

Settle the dispute as quickly as possible and allow the business of business to get on...

Sincerely,

Cindy Morse
